Up and Smell the Coffee! is a documentary film about how young people can use cameras to make a difference. In the film, a group of grade 8 and 9 students from two schools in southwestern Ethiopia are caught on film taking photographs and working with their photographs. The film documents young Fri, 20 Nov Caffeine has been used as a performance-enhancing aid by athletes for many years. The first known study to explore the effects of caffeine ingestion on exercise performance dates back to 1907. 1 Until recently, however, findings on this topic remained equivocal, despite a large number of published studies over the last 30 to 40 years. 2 There are many possible reasons for the discrepant results between these studies, but one likely issue could be a common ... Fri, 20
